

FORVM
GEOPOLITICA
Independent Commentary on a Fractured World

US elections decide on war or peace

The US will decide whether World War 3 breaks out. The outcome of the presidential election will be a decisive factor for war or peace.

Peter Hanseler

Mon 09 Sep 2024

Introduction

In the past three months, I have traveled many countries, countries of the West and also places that are not on the wish list of Western tourists, as they belong to the "axis of evil" in the understanding of the West: I have been to Iran, crossed Russia by train, visited China, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Sweden and Spain.

I spoke to Persians, Russians, Ukrainians, Chinese, Koreans, Swiss, Italians, Greeks, Americans, Germans, Syrians, Arabs, Swedes and Spaniards from all walks of life. With students, with welders, with hairdressers, cab drivers, gallery owners, hotel staff, travel guides, ship captains, investors, professors, lawyers, bankers, fitness trainers and with my wife.

In no country and from no person did I hear a word of hatred - not once. That is somewhat astonishing. If you read the newspapers or listen to Western politicians, all you hear is hatred and discord. Is it perhaps because politicians and the media are conveying an image to us that doesn't match the sentiment of the people, that the tenor only conveys the wishful thinking of a few?

It took me some time to categorize all my impressions and to get an overview of the world situation based on them, without slipping into the boundless, because there was no summer slump.

Donald Trump had an assassination attempt carried out on him, he appointed his running mate. The senile President Biden was taken out of the race, but is still in office. His vice-president, who is supposed to be his successor, settled on a running mate, a vice-president who lied about his role in the army. Viktor Orban is trying to bring peace to Ukraine and is being attacked for it. Prime Minister Netanyahu calls for war against Iran before the US Congress, wages war in Lebanon and does his utmost to completely exterminate the Palestinian population in the Gaza Strip. In front of a Congress, 50% of which is filled with statist, he receives a rounds of standing ovations for statements that would suit a Nazi leader. Ukrainians are dying like flies on the front line and Zelensky celebrates the F-16s and his raid on Kursk. The stock markets took a giant dive on a Monday and ended the week where it began. Regional elections are taking place in Germany and the defeated leadership in Berlin, which never tires of talking about democracy, is using every unsavory undemocratic means to thwart the will of the people so as not to lose its "democratic" power. With a sly smile, Vladimir Putin favors Kamala Harris because she laughs so heartily.

In normal times, all of these events would be enough to set the world on edge if they were isolated incidents. I will try to make sense of this potpourri of madness and horror. In this and subsequent articles, I will be forced to omit many things, always in the hope of not committing a major error of judgment.

Since the first - and probably last - televised duel between Donald Trump and Kamala Harris will take place on Tuesday, September 10, it makes sense to start with an article about the US.

America - destroys itself and the rest of the world

The US has dominated the rest of the world since the Second World War at the latest. This does not happen with military omnipotence, because the US has not won a war since the Second World War; it has lost most of them or somehow pulled out of them. Two images - Saigon in 1975 and Kabul in 2021 - are representative of the complete powerlessness of the world power after decades of armed conflict, during which the US presented itself as the victor right up to the point of collapse.

Saigon 1975 - Kabul 2021 - Humiliating moments of a world power

Currently, the US spends more money on its military than the next twenty countries combined and operates some 800 military bases abroad. However, the result is pitiful in many respects. Most of the weapons systems are completely obsolete. For example, the F-16 was developed at a time when I attended the very first class - 1971. The newer systems are wickedly expensive and often don't work (e.g. F-35).

There are also good American weapon systems, such as the Apache attack helicopter. However, the shortcoming of this weapon system is that it costs about ten times more than the Kamov K-52 from Russia, which experts say is equivalent. So much for corruption in the US.

"A superpower that wants to dominate with its military might and that can actually use this power looks different."

The military leadership is a grandiose water head with no less than 42 four-star generals for around 2,000,000 soldiers, including around 800,000 reservists. That makes one four-star general for every 50,000 men. During the Second World War, there were seven four-star generals in service in the US, in an army of over 12 million soldiers; thus one four-star general for every 1.7 million soldiers.

A superpower that wants to dominate with its military might and that can actually use this power looks different.

The Americans are not yet in direct military conflict with Russia, but with the Houthis. Yet again, they are being shown up.

The influence of the US is therefore not based on military strength. Its power is based on the US dollar and the ability to use this instrument to finance a lifestyle at the expense of others on the one hand and to use the US dollar as a weapon by means of sanctions on the other. We have described this many times on this blog.

Despite the fact that the US is not what it wants to be as a military power, its military means are entirely sufficient to trigger a Third World War. The upcoming presidential elections will be decisive in determining whether warmongers come to power or not. It is therefore no exaggeration to postulate that the election in November will go down as the most decisive presidential election in history.

Presidential elections

The deep state rules for Biden

The Presidential race shows what a catastrophic state American society is in. The COVID lockdowns helped the elite hoist a senile, corrupt, but malleable guy into the White House who ran his campaign from his basement. With this man out of the race, the question is who is actually running the US, as President Biden is mostly vegetating in a deck chair on the beach and his only decisions are probably limited to the flavor of his ice cream.

President Biden: Only decisions left to him: Choice of ice cream flavor.

Kamala Harris / Tim Walz - the perfect pairing for the deep state

Kamala Harris, who is being presented as President Biden's successor without ever having obtained a vote in an election campaign, is not even capable of holding her own in a soft ball interview in which she also had to have her running mate at her side.

Source: CNN

The substance of Kamala Harris' interview is so weak that it is not even worth translating it into German or Russian. For example, Harris claims that she is not responsible for the border with Mexico, where over 10 million illegal immigrants from all over the world flood the US every year, although this has been her main task for the past four years. She actually has the chutzpah to blame President Trump, even though she and Biden have been running the US for the past four years. It is fair to say that Ms. Harris is a complete nonentity intellectually and dossier-wise and - unlike Biden - cannot talk her way out by saying she is completely senile.

"If Kamala Harris could get votes, she'd probably be willing to appear in a Ku Klux Klan costume."

Nevertheless, she has one "impressive" character trait: she will do anything - really anything - to get the job and this prostituting strategy runs through her entire life as a person who for decades presented herself as "Indian-Jamaican-American" and now - due to electoral strategy - suddenly presents herself as "African-American". If Kamala Harris could get votes, she would probably also be prepared to appear in a Ku Klux Klan costume.

She would do it - Kamala in a Ku Klux Klan costume catching votes.

There is a lot of lying in politics and politicians usually get away with it. However, when it comes to roles in the military, that's when things get dicey in the US. Tim Walz said in 2018 that he "carried a weapon of war in war," but although he served in the Minnesota National Guard and was deployed to Italy for support during the war in Afghanistan, he did not see combat. This lie could cost him his job.

One can assume that the people who actually control the US want to hoist two completely extortionable, incompetent placeholders into the White House to continue their policies. This has worked perfectly since Biden took office.

Unsavory warmongers support Harris

Dick Cheney and Kamala Harris have nothing in common, you might think.

Dick Cheney, the (Vice) President above/under George W. Bush, was one of the authors of the document "Project for the New American Century" in 2000, which was nothing other than his roadmap for the wars raging in the Middle East from 2001 onwards. We reported on this in detail almost a year ago in our series "Bloodbaths change the world". Here is the series. Here is the section on the war document.

The neo-conservative Cheney is one of the fathers of the Middle East wars that raged from 2001 onwards, costing millions of lives in addition to billions in profits for the armaments industry and turning into complete disasters for the US. This can only mean that Cheney and other neo-cons who propagate perpetual wars - currently against Russia - hope to achieve their goal if Kamala Harris becomes president.

«If you think it is ok to kill people to become rich you are on their side»

"WENN DU DENKST, DASS ES IN ORDNUNG IST, MENSCHEN ZU TÖTEN, UM REICH ZU WERDEN, BIST DU AUF IHRER SEITE"

Donald Trump - a brilliant salesman with shortcomings

The alternative to Harris-Walz is Donald Trump. Donald Trump is controversial or even hated by many. But he has one quality that cannot be denied: he has courage. He proved it on the day of the assassination attempt and the result is a picture that will go down in history.

An image for the history book

Courage is a quality that is of paramount importance to people in an age of windbags and woke wimps, especially today as the era of woke aberration comes to an end; an era characterized by society allowing a few demagogues to bring those people who find themselves on the margins of a normal society into the center of that society, to call this normal, and to lead a crusade against those people who are actually at the root of humanity's continued existence: heterosexual women and men. Because: overweight men in women's clothing who pretend to be menstruating and claim the use of the women's changing rooms for themselves are not fit to guarantee the survival of humanity on this planet. By the way, I don't have the slightest problem with all these new genders and varieties, as long as these 0.001% don't want to determine the lives and language of the other 99.999%. But that's what they want. So, it's a blessing for humanity that this ridiculous nightmare will soon be over.

"The path to the White House is paved with empty promises and the stench of decay from long-dead virtues."

In addition to his courage, Donald Trump has proven as president that it is possible to go without war. He was the first president in over 70 years not to start a new war. That is a fact. Since he is snubbing, even fighting, the Deep State and its fabulous blood profits, it is not surprising that long before his election he was mercilessly persecuted by this establishment, which has all the three-letter agencies at its disposal (CIA, FBI, NSA, etc.). If you look at the list of accusations and the intensity of Trump's persecution, you are left somewhat speechless, because all the accusations turned out to be either completely false or exaggerated. By the way, anyone who believes that men who make it to the White House in the USA have a spotless record is completely naive. The path to the White House is paved with empty promises and the stench of decay from long-dead virtues.

You also have to give Trump credit for his almost superhuman stamina. This is a man who has stood in the fire for ten years and is still smiling with his red-blond mop of hair. These are the aspects of Trump that can be seen as undeniably positive. Of course, the Western media are silent about them.

Sometimes Trump comes across as a blowhard, and while he has the instincts of a gifted salesman and gets his message across like no other, he also has major flaws. Over the summer, I had the opportunity to talk to people who have known Donald Trump for decades and can certainly judge what makes him tick. Trump's biggest weakness is that he does not read and therefore does not develop an intellectual basis for his decisions; he is a pure gut person. Furthermore, he is not at all good at intellectually weighing different pieces of advice and analyzing them critically and skeptically before making a decision. This means that he may end up following the advice of the last person he talked to.

The fact that there is a lot of truth in this statement of my sources can be seen, for example, in his choice of cabinet members during his first term in office. Trump, who can be described as "anti-establishment" and therefore an opponent of the Deep State, managed to appoint John Bolton to his cabinet as National Security Advisor. Bolton is one of the biggest warmongers the US has ever produced. It's like appointing the arsonist as fire chief. Mike Pompeo was also a disastrous choice. Donald Trump's flaws indicate that, in my opinion, he is also not a suitable person to be elected to the highest office in the US, if circumstances were normal.

It was somewhat surprising that Robert Kennedy Jr. threw his support behind Trump a few days ago. The son of the assassinated Robert Kennedy and nephew of JFK and his entire family are die-hard Democrats. Since Robert Kennedy Jr. is one of the few politicians I consider honest and upright, he was, not surprisingly, blocked by his own party. He ran as an independent, where he ran a respectable campaign, but with no chance of ever being elected. How disgusted must Robert Kennedy Jr. have been that he decided to support Trump, with whom he really has no affinity - if only because of his personality - and even had to endure harsh criticism from his family?

More than worth seeing: Speech by Robert Kennedy jr.

Kennedy's speech is an eye-opener because it focuses on three main points: The mafia-like actions of the food lobby in the U.S. that is making the American people fat and sick. The criminal pharmaceutical industry that keeps the population sick and financially ruined. The third focus of his speech is the war in Ukraine, where he argues intelligently and factually about the plan of the military-industrial complex that provoked this war and wants to continue it.

Conclusion

If the deep state did not exist, both candidates for the highest office in the United States could be considered unfit and one would abstain from voting.

However, if one is aware that the U.S. has not only been controlled by the Deep State for a long time, but actually governed by it - because President Biden is incapable of governing this country and, in my opinion, has not been for the past four years - then every voter who does not want eternal war with the real prospect of the complete destruction of humanity should vote for the candidate who is not supported by the Deep State. So for the salvation of the world, Donald Trump should move into the White House - despite all his shortcomings.

I am not at all surprised that the entire Western media is lashing out against Trump, because they too are in the pocket of the Deep State. The trouble is that many journalists are too naive or stupid to see the obvious.

There are many who credibly argue that the assassination attempt on Donald Trump a few weeks ago was not the act of a deranged lone wolf, but an attempt to take Trump out of the race through murder.

If the greatest power structure that has ever existed in the history of the world is doing everything it can to stop Trump, then we can only wonder what will happen between now and November.

The first - and probably the last - debate between Trump and Harris will take place on September 10th. A must for anyone who cares about the future of the world.

ARTICLE TAGS:

Analysis Biden, Joe Trump, Donald Harris, Kamala Walz, Tim Kennedy, Robert Jr. US
US Presidential Elections 2024 Bush, George W. Cheney, Dick Netanyahu, Benjamin
Pompeo, Michael Putin, Vladimir Zelensky, Vladimir Deep State
Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) National Security Agency (NSA)
Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI)